REFLECTION FROM OUR SEMINARIAN

In St. Paul's letter to Timothy, we read that Christ is the one mediator between God and man. He is the one mediator because he alone is able to mediate between God and man. He alone is both fully God and fully Man, the perfect union of the two natures, which is why he is able to be the mediator. In his bodily ascension into Heaven, he entered the Heavenly sanctuary and offers himself as a continual sacrifice to the Father for the salvation of souls and the sanctification of the world. We are able to participate in this sacrifice in a special way through the sacrifice of the Mass, in which Christ is the primary minister.

As mediator, he opens to us the grace of the Father through the sacraments, of which he is the primary minister, and bestows on us the grace that we need to attain holiness and salvation. The merits of this grace are obtained solely through Christ's sacrifice on the cross and the merits of this grace flow from it. Thus, the merits of grace are because of Christ's merit alone and are not obtained by any means or merit of our own. The grace given through the sacraments are a freely given gift from Christ, who deeply desires our conversion and our unity with him. Thus, it is important for us to participate in the sacraments, so that we may obtain that grace being offered. ~ Matthew Bonner
